

VILLISTAS KILL ENTIRE COMMAND IN SHORT BATTLE ATTACK ON CHIHUAHUA CITY IS BELIEVED IMMINENT

General Who Succeeded Blain Carranza Commander is Wounded in Same Fight Saturday—One Report Says Villa is Ten Miles West of Chihuahua City, But Constitutionalists Deny This.

EL PASO, Oct. 24.—Federal agents here today telegraphed the war department at Washington that General Osuna, a Carranzista commander pursuing Pancho Villa, has been killed.

Osuna and his entire command were slaughtered in a battle with Villa Saturday. General Salinas, who succeeded Osuna, was wounded.

Villa, with a large following, is reported to be encamped at Fresno, ten miles west of Chihuahua City.

Carranzistas are attempting to maintain a rigid censorship of all news concerning the battle Saturday.

EL PASO, Oct. 24.—Late this afternoon it was unconfirmedly reported here that Villistas had surrounded the western side of Chihuahua City and were forcing Carranzista troops from the outskirts of the city.

Another attack on Chihuahua City is believed imminent.

The Carranzistas here insist that Villa is being driven toward San Isabel.

British Armored Tanks Not New--Invented 1854

By HAL O'FLAHERTY

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, Oct. 5.—(By mail)—The cars, or "tanks," as they are called, which walk through stone walls and over trenches, are far from being a new idea in warfare. "Way back in 1854, an inventor named James Cowen constructed a "tank" similar to those now in use on the British front, except that it was propelled by steam instead of gasoline. Cowen described his invention as a "land and sea locomotive steam ram battery." It was capable, so he told Lord Palmerston, then premier, of effectually annihilating cavalry and infantry and crushing artillery batteries. Unfortunately the authorities refused to build or help build any of the machines, much to Cowen's dismay.

The inventor was so enraged over the government's refusal of his plans that he issued a pamphlet telling the public of his wonderful death dealing machine and of the pettiness of the men in power at that time. The pamphlet, reprinted in London papers today, shows Cowen's juggernaut —a heavily armored locomotive belching fire from guns fore and aft.

In bold lettering over the picture

Cowen says: "Submitted to Lord Palmerston and his colleagues, and by them submitted to a select committee of the most experienced veterans of the age—supposed to be (?) but in reality washed out old Women and Old Tabbies at Woolwich, whither I caused machine, models, plans, etc., to be conveyed, mark—at my own expense. For Johnny Bull is a craven animal after his truly Beloved God—

Money; and never parts with it willingly, but freely allows himself to be robbed of it by his rulers and task-masters while he dolesly dreams of his Freedom and Liberty; and this lot of Lucres he has only obtained after wading ankle deep in blood all over the world—and this is his greatness!"

Cowen asserts in a note at the bottom of his pamphlet that the select committee of veterans refused to consider his plans because the ram could not be officered by a host of poor relations of the upper ten thousand, "supported by half starved serfs." He was undoubtedly venting his spleen upon men who refused to consider such an advanced idea for those days.

The refusal stands out in bold contrast to the lightning action of the present day authorities who enthusiastically furthered the project for the new armored car.

JOHN BARRETT

John Barrett, director general of the passengers of the French steamship Lafayette, which dodged the U-53. Officers of the vessel know the German submarine was operating before they left France, but they did not delay their voyage. When they reached the vicinity of Nantucket lightship they veered south, and the vessel reached New York without seeing the deadly German engine of war. Had the Lafayette been attacked the lives of many well known Americans, W. K. Vanderbilt, S. S. McClure and others equally prominent, and of Carusi the singer and Gatti Casazza, manager of the Metropolitan opera house, would have been in peril.
